

My review of primary school life

The last bell rings. It tells us my six-year primary school life is over.

I still remember my first day at school. I held Mom's hand tightly. I felt nervous, but I was also curious. When I reached the classroom door, the tidy desks and chairs and the gentle teacher made me want to go inside immediately.

Now, I am not that silly little kid anymore. I can work out math problems by myself. I can also write good and clear stories .

These years are full of happy things I will never forget. I felt so excited when I won competitions. My classmates comforted me when I failed. My teachers taught me patiently. All these things not only made me learn a lot of knowledge, but also made me a better person.

The end of primary school is not a stop. It is a new start. I will take these sweet memories and useful lessons with me. I will go to high school bravely and face new challenges.

Goodbye, primary school. Thank you for giving me the best years of my childhood.

An unexpected thing in the Easter holiday

In this Easter holiday, my family and I went to Thailand to have a fun trip. An unexpected thing happened.

Before we went to Pattaya, we went to Tiger Zoo. There were a lot of amazing stuffs to do, such as watching a pig race, feeding the crocodiles and taking photos with a liger which was mixed by a male lion and a female tiger.

After we visited the adorable baby tigers, we went to see the Giant Sculpin. On the way, we saw somebody taking photos with some baby crocodiles. Mum asked me to take photos with the crocodile too. I was in a panic before the zookeeper put the crocodile on my hands but after that I started to be calm. It was not as scared as I thought. I did not expect that. The crocodile's tummy was as soft as a pillow. I started to think that the baby crocodiles are cute.

After this, I learnt we should try new things even we are scared because it may not be as scary as we thought.

My expectation of secondary school life

Secondary school is just around the corner. I am looking forward to be a secondary student. Also, I feel a bit nervous. It is because secondary school has a lot of subjects such as history, Geography and Biology. Many subjects are taught in English, so we need to prepare before going to secondary school.

First, we need to preview those new subjects because when teachers are teaching us, you don't know what they teach, you need to learn more time, it will waste a lot of time. Also, if we want to build a strong foundation in English, you can read more books to learn English. If you repeat these steps many days, our English will be good.

Second, in secondary school, there are many new students who may not know their names. So we don't need to feel panic to have no friends. We just need to have bravery to chat with hem and meet more friends. So you will be extremely good.

To conclude, prepare for secondary school is very important. Also, getting along with people is an important life skill because when you have difficult, it can find friends to help. However secondary school is just a short milestone, we need to grow up and learn how to be an independent person, don't always depend on the others.

My School Picnic

On 4th November, I went to school picnic with my P.6 schoolmate and all P.6 class teachers. We went to Hong Kong Disneyland this year.

In the morning, we had a Stem activity about Mechanics. The guide let us played interesting games and do some experiments of mechanics. After the activity, we had our lunch. Some classmates ate bread. I ate a banana and some bread.

In the afternoon, I played lots of amusement rides with my friends. One of them was Big Grazzy Mountain Runaway Mines Car. In the Beginning, I was scared of it, but I wanted to try it. After playing it, I felt it was not as scary as I imagined. We all had a happy faces after playing it.

In conclusion, I feel very happy and excited. I also learnt a lot of Stem knowledge. I also want to go to the Hong Kong Disneyland again as soon as possible.

My Graduation Camp

Last month, my classmates and I went to a graduation camp. It was very fun. I liked it very much.

On the first day, we went exploring the camp. There were a lot of different places to explore, such as the mangrove forest and the BBQ site. The campsite was very big. We explored it for the whole day!

The next day, we played games at the campsite. We played adventure games. They were not just for fun. They were for training our teamwork. I think it was very meaningful. I liked it very much.

After the graduation camp, I learned that teamwork is very important. We cannot do anything without teamwork. I liked the graduation camp so much!
